

Jay (second from left) with Sloan

Sloan's Jay Ferguson tells us about his favorite songs of 2021

Bill Pearis

| December 28, 2021

f SHARE

X TWEET

Jay (second from left) with Sloan

Canadian alt-rock greats Sloan celebrated their 30th anniversary this year, releasing the second volume of their B-Sides Win compilations

, along with the first vinyl release of their 2013 hardcore tribute covers album

. The band have finished recording their 13th studio album which they're about to mix and hopefully release before the end of 2022. Stay tuned for more details on that.

We've been asking artists for their end-of-year lists, and here is Sloan guitarist/singer Jay Ferguson's Top 11 Songs of 2021. Jay might be the most avid, active music fan in the band

—

11. Motorists – “Through To You”

Intended or not, with this track these lads have done an excellent job conjuring that tough-but-thin guitar pop sound that found its home on U.S. independent 7” labels like Car Records or Ork circa 1979 -1981. Even singer/guitarist Craig Fahner’s Van Duren-ish ’77 Memphis-style look in this track’s video homage to Beat Club is perhaps an indication where further inspiration lays for them to carry into the future. Good lord, have I made enough nerdish references yet? Please forgive me. These guys are here now. Just enjoy the music.

—